Dear OpenAI Hiring Team,

I am applying for the Developer Education Lead role in San Francisco. The role matches the center of my work: turning new technical capability into examples, learning paths, demos, workshops, and repeatable resolutions in market.

I am a builder and educator, bridging between AI-assisted products, technical explanation, customer education, and practical adoption. I built Sip Studies initially with the aid of ChatGPT, Dall-e, and Sora then evolved into Sipopedia as a Codex-enabled beverage LMS ecosystem with classes, terms, games, quizzes, maps, tasting journals, news, and more. The work epitomizes the workflow I would bring to Developer Education: understand, build, document, validate, teach and use feedback to improve and scale the next version of each project.

This has become ingrained in my daily workflow, problem solving, ideation, and innovation. With Sipopedia, I use advanced prompting, durable goals/threads, repo-driven AI agent workflows, and OpenClaw coordination to move from drafting conceptual designs to construction. Sipopedia now includes a 20,000-row terminology pipeline with the goal of competing with other encyclopedias, developing mobile industry tools for in field solutions, and agentic education as a video game to implement all the datapoints.

At Breakthru Beverage, I build weekly Gap Reports that ETL messy data into a practical sales tool. At AARP Colorado, I taught live and recorded education viewed across all 50 states. At Total Wine & More, I wrote curriculum, instructed customers, and trained staff. In live-event work with On Location-UFC and Video Tech Services, I learned how to communicate clearly in high-pressure rooms when timing and trust mattered.

With OpenAI, I want to make frontier AI products feel understandable, useful, and safe inside real solutions. I would bring a practical builder-educator loop: learn the product deeply, create hands-on examples, explain the tradeoffs plainly, build workshops and labs, measure whether the learning stuck, and return field signals to Product, Engineering, and Go-To-Market teams. I want to join the team that's building the future!

Looking forward in showing you what I've got in store!

Sincerely,

Jonathan Yu

Founder | AI Workflow Builder | Customer Enablement Lead

Founder, builder and customer enablement operator who turns complex AI/product workflows into practical learning systems, workshops, documentation, and adoption playbooks. Utilizing and building with A.I. since 2022, the technology started as a passion project and now has evolved into a daily workflow, both with work and with personal deployment.

2018 & 2026

Salesman Quarterly Excellence Awards

12+ years

Experience in education, sales, workflow, adoption

95,000+

Placements of brands monitored for 23 accounts statewide

20,000 TERMS

WHY OPENAI

Codex | AI Success Deployment

Best fit: customer workflow mapping, practical AI coding examples, technical workshops, adoption of OpenAI ecosystem, validation, documentation, and product feedback from the field.

OpenClaw harnessing has accentuated Codex deployment by enabling an agentic team for project management, artifact generation, and cron jobs.

Workflow

Breakthru Gap Report converts messy inventory, Points Of Distribution (PODs), sales movement, and incentive data into weekly execution priorities.

Market changes required a deeper understanding of our sales data to adapt in field to grow strategic sales.

Customer Education

Turns complex tools into learning paths, plain-language curriculum, quizzes, role play, and measurable behavior change.

Production

Sipopedia and Sip Studies show product ownership across learning tools, terminology, maps, journals, and authorization.

Live Production

Conventions, UFC VIP, event production, and customer education show focused execution in high-pressure rooms.

Design Foundation

Architecture, project management, drafting, and design shaped how product information is visualized and utilized.
